

Hi there team Defiants.

Since the dawn of Defiants, our business model has always had a larger vision to not only build a non profit that invests in our own team and the larger mission of crypto community development, but also to support social impact projects which are susceptible to the adoption of blockchain.

Through the efforts of Dave's engagement in a social impact blockchain startup called SEEDS, we got into contact with a young Ugandan NGO (www.projectunidos.org/), located in the 3th largest refugee settlement in the world, Navikale.

As some might know, Uganda is one of the remaining unconnected regions of Africa, and therefore unbanked. While the vision to bank the unbanked is certainly important, there is a more pressing need for these people. Food.

Since governments closed the borders of this rather poor country at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, the risk of famine has threatened the more than 100,000 people living in this refugee settlement, situated near the borders of Tanzania, Rwanda, and Congo.

Unidos, which focuses on training local entrepreneurs, has taken the task to train local farmers in efficient farming techniques and provide them with seeds and equipment (very expensive commodities in Uganda) that could help them cultivate food.

The first target is the construction of an education center. The image above is the current state of that construction and requires further funding to provide for a roof, windows and doors. The 10m by 8m building made from cow dung and clay bricks could become a polyvalent infrastructure, also used for schooling children in the direct neighborhood.

The land of the construction site was donated by the prime minister of Uganda, to the UNIDOS organisation and the people living here.

As Defiants, we have an opportunity to deepen our story and be the main donor of this project.

In January, Dave and Gino will travel for 1 month and stay at the center of Unidos, located in this refugee settlement.

Defiants has decided to cover the travel expenses for Dave, the project leader of this initiative. However, we still seek to gather a total of $4,000 from individual donors. Is anyone from the team interested in helping?
